- If your winter lawn included grassy weeds such as annual bluegrass and rescue grass it is trying to set seed now and will be declining while the permanent lawn grass is greening up for the summer. Keep the lawn mowed to reduce the seeding and ignore the yellowing caused by the weeds declining.
- Wildflowers need to be allowed to mature their seed if you want the seed produced for next year's flowers. It means tolerating a weedy look while the seeds are produced. Don't mow the wildflower areas until early summer for maximum seed production.
- Call in your irrigation contractor to perform an inspection and perform necessary maintenance to eliminate leaks and prepare for the irrigation season ahead.
- We are in the prime landscape and garden activity portion of the year. If you are considering a project visit the SAWS Conservation website to see if any of their rebate offerings will help you save money and water on your project.
